Module overview
Building on the achievements of Level 4, students engage in preparation and rehearsals that will be led by an external director. Students will address aspects of performance technique that will ensure their continuing ability to develop their skills for performance and appropriately discuss ways to present their observations of the process of rehearsal and performance.

Aims
In this module students prepare, rehearse and present a medium scale in-house performance work that demonstrates performance skills acquired on the programme for an audience that is made up of students from other levels and programmes across the institution. In this context students practice and demonstrate what they have learned through engagement with directors and other contributors. Students integrate their performance and collaborative skills whilst contributing creatively and personally to this artistic performance endeavour.

The module aims are to:
1. Enable students to develop their knowledge and understanding of the role of the performer in the context of an in-house performance.
2. Enable students to further develop their technical command with regard to the range of skills and practices, creativity and performance for Theatre through an in-house performance.
3. Enable students to further develop their criticality and artistic judgement in the creation, rehearsal and performance of a medium scale production.
4. Enable students to engage professionally in cooperative and collaborative practices in the creation, rehearsal and performance of a medium-scale production by taking responsibility for professionalism and the contribution to the processes of production.

Learning outcomes
On successful completion of this module, students will be able to:
1. Demonstrate significant subject specific knowledge of performance to show clear appreciation and understanding of that knowledge with regard to their work on these events.
3. Demonstrate the ability to reflect critically upon their own artistic and expressive development in performance with a degree of sophistication and complexity.
4. Demonstrate significant self-reliance and collaboration in their application of their on-going self-discipline and ability to take responsibility as performers in their participation in the ensemble performance and other activities in this module.

Learning and teaching methods
The module will be delivered through large/medium groups. In working on a production students will have the ability to demonstrate the acquisition of performance skills, as well as develop those skills over longer, broader stories/narratives. Students will engage in practices that will develop their self-sufficiency as emerging performance artists. Students will discuss the appropriate ways to engage in written discourse concerning their practical work in order to develop this skill.

Opportunities for formative feedback

Students will receive on-going formative assessment via performing opportunities that offer possibilities for peer as well as tutor feedback.

Dress rehearsals will offer students the opportunity to experiment and explore their final assessment tasks with supportive feedback concerning technical aspects of the task that is referenced to their competence in the delivery of a performance.

Further to the above there will be opportunities to video sessions to aid peer and formative assessment. Video materials may also be uploaded to the conservatoire’s VLE to reinforce the developmental process required for the development of an emerging Theatre practitioner.

*It is unlikely that students or the conservatoire will be able to provide equivalent resources for an accurate re-construction of the elements of assessment that were applied in the first instance. Therefore, a negotiated arrangement that addresses the Learning Outcomes for the Process Assessment and the Practical Assessment project in this module will be created to enable students to be reassessed.
